Task 1. Look at the sentences below about a rock-climbing trip. Read the text to decide if each sentence is correct or incorrect. If it is correct, mark A. If it is incorrect, mark B.

11. Samantha and her father travelled a great distance to the place where they went climbing.
12. The place where Samantha and her dad got off the boat was very cheerful-looking.
13. They were disappointed by the accommodation and the transport provided.
14. There were still a number of climbing routes on the island waiting to be explored.
15. Samantha found her climb easy because the route she took had been prepared for climbers.
16. Samantha thinks the island is generally a safer climbing location than most others.
17. Samantha liked the fact that she could chat with people her age after a day's climbing.
18. Samantha had difficulty with the technique of using the rope to make herself safe.
19. Samantha found climbing up the cliff harder than her friend from home did.
20. Samantha and her dad said they would return one day to the beach they found.

CLIMBING TRIP

by Samantha Davis

My dad and I have both done a bit of climbing at our local sports centre. So we decided to go on a trip together, climbing the high rocks along the coastline of a small island. Although it wasn't far from where we live, the journey across the sea took quite a long time – but it was worth it!

As we approached the island, Dad pointed out the rocks covered in colourful plants, wild goats and bees, which were once the only signs of life on this now popular place for visitors. The island has become well-known as a climbing venue and the ferry we took across to the island was full of climbers carrying boots and backpacks.

We arrived at the island's harbour, full of brightly-coloured houses lit by the early-morning sun. We were met by a driver in an ancient old car, arranged by the travel company we'd booked with. The driver took us to the tiny apartment, which, like the car, had seen better days, but it was comfortable and we weren't going to spend much time there anyway.

There are lots of possible climbs up the island's rocks, and not all of them have been discovered by climbers, but many have places clearly marked out so climbers can easily see where to put their hands and feet. All we needed were shoes, ropes and the equipment for attaching the rope to the rocks, although despite the markings on the rocks, I still had problems! Anyway, climbing is obviously not without risk, and things can still go wrong, but you're far less likely to get into difficulties on the island.

There was a wide range of climbers, both in ability and age, so there was no need for my previous worries about being the only teenager. Away from the rocks and back in the town, there was a very sociable atmosphere in the cafes, where we compared notes on what we'd achieved that day.

One day, our climbing destination was a rough cliff, with very little to put my hands and feet on. It was amazing how quickly I learnt to attach my rope onto the rock to avoid falling as I climbed! Then I realised the boy climbing next to me was someone I knew. We waved, smiled and moved on, although he seemed to find the rock far less of a challenge!

Once Dad and I were down at ground level again, we stopped at a beach, which was deserted. We walked along with our feet in the water and promised ourselves that it wouldn't be the last time that we sat on that stretch of beach.

Task 2. Read the text and questions below. For each question, choose the correct letter A, B, C or D.

Water-skiing barefoot

by Dan Thomas

Have you ever been barefoot water-skiing? It's just like normal water-skiing, being pulled along behind a boat at 40 mph – but without any skis! It sounds scary but it's amazing! My cousin used to take me water-skiing, and that's where I first learnt to stand up and balance. But I moved on to barefooting when I did it for a laugh with some mates. And I loved it!

Barefoot water-skiing is one of the most popular watersports there is – to watch, anyway! When someone jumps really high and then lands, it's awesome. And you don't need expensive stuff like boards, although a wetsuit's a good idea. But catching your toes on things in the lake can hurt. I guess you can't help getting water up your nose when you start learning, too, as you have to lie almost flat in the water before you pull yourself up – but it's OK.

Now I'm experienced, I've learnt not to attempt new moves in rough water as it never goes well. Instead, I make sure I limit myself to skiing directly behind the boat, where the water's calmer. I ask the boat drivers to warn me about big waves coming, although they can't always see them.

Finding time to practise regularly is hard as I'm still at school – but then it's not as if I'm into winning prizes and stuff. But if I want to learn a new move, I need to repeat it over and over, and that's not easy in winter when it's cold. Lots of skiers say they'll continue during cold weather, but not many do. So I'm often the only one out on the lake!

21. What is Dan trying to do in this text about barefoot water-skiing?

A explain why he's determined to become a champion

☒ B convince people that his sport is both safe and easy

C suggest the best ways to begin learning his sport

☒ D describe what he does to get better at his sport

22. Dan started barefoot water-skiing when

☒ A he tried it out just for fun.

B he realised how easy it was to do.

C he was taught how to do it by his cousin.

D he was persuaded by friends to have a go.

23. What does Dan think are the disadvantages of barefoot water-skiing ?

A Although not much equipment is needed, it isn't cheap.

B If your feet hit something in the water, it's painful.

C If you start in the wrong position, you breathe in water.

D Although you jump higher without skis, it's harder to land.

24. How does Dan feel about skiing in rough water?

A confident that his boat drivers will keep him safe

B annoyed about having to ski inside a limited area

C unwilling to try anything he hasn't practiced before

D certain of his ability to handle difficult conditions

25. What might Dan write to a friend about his barefoot water-skiing?

A I'm one of the few people who avoids going once the weather gets a bit colder!

B The boat travels along in the water at quite a speed, but it's not as frightening as you'd think!

C It's a fantastic water sport to watch – it's just a shame more people don't enjoy going to see it.

D If I can fit enough practice of the sport in with my studies, I'm hoping to win a prize.
